JOAKIM REVEMAN

RUHE TALENT MANAGEMENT

A true creative, Reveman was just 25 when he won his first Cannes Gold Lion for Doctors Without Borders, effectively jump-starting his illustrious advertising career. As an Art Director at TBWA Paris, he won over 40 international awards, which in turn, helped the agency win the Cannes Lion's 'Ad Agency of the Year Award' for 3 consecutive years. Shortly thereafter, Joakim launched his own directing collective, "The Vikings", with several like-minded friends. Their first endeavour was "The Power of Wind", a film that the Gunn Report stated was the "Second Most Awarded Film" that year, after nabbing a Gold Lion at Cannes, and top honours at AICP, Clio's, One Show, ADC and the Grand Prix at Eurobest.

Reveman has collaborated with a wide variety of clients including Nike, Cadbury, BMW, Epuron, Schick and ESPN alongside agencies like GSD&M, Wieden+Kennedy and Euro RSCG New York. Joakim lives with his family in Berlin.
